COMPLETE UNIVERSITY DEBATING SCHEDULE

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 8.—The debating schedule for the coming year is nearing completion and will be announced within a few days. A debate with Tulane University, New Orleans, will be held here, while negotiations are in progress for trips to Cornell, Princeton and Vanderbilt. A representative will be sent to the Southern Oratorical contest, to be held this year at the University of Alabama.

Due to lack of funds, only two trips were taken last year—one to the University of Georgia, and one to Philadelphia, to debate a team from Cornell. The Washington and Jefferson Literary Societies have been asked to help pay the expenses of the debaters who will make the trips this year. Preliminary for contestants for the debating teams will be held the latter part of January. The subject as yet not been announced.

WHAT THE FASHION SHOW REVEALS

Simplicity indeed marks the new fashions for mid-winter. As if shown of adolescent, fashion allows ribbon and beads alone to remain to trim the very simple foundations. Women are more and more favoring the slip-frock of silk for their wear. They complain that the heavier materials are too warm for the modern homes, with their stinging steam heaters, and that for outdoor wear, the heavy fur or cloth coat is sufficient protection. That a itself has affected the winter fashion for several seasons past, until at last the silk frock, for all winter long wear, has become the style. Walk into any of the smart shops and ask to see their models. Although the snow is falling outside and the clink of skates heard in the suburbs, yet the saleswoman will at once display what the winter fashion show has set as a standard: crinolines, crepe de chine, all the new fancy woven crepes on the market find their places in the new models.

Tulle Blouses. With a deft touch borrowed from the latest notes of the fashion show, many discarded frocks may be rejuvenated into active service again. The tulle blouse, so recently launched, has grown into such popularity that it is displayed as a new model. In reality, the tulle blouse is merely an elongated Russian blouse. Instead of the silk blouse ending at the hip line and being edged with a narrow belt, it continues its way down to the ankles, here it is hemmed, pleated, fringed or scalloped. The girdle is of rope like tassels weighting its ends and winging outward as Missy walks. You can take that old satin frock, the skirt is used as a foundation for the overgarment of black or dark blue, regardless of the color of your Hale Hamilton Is Popular. Dan's fortune has smiled upon genial Hale Hamilton. Not only is he one of Broadway's favorite light comedians, but he is a successful playwright whose royalty checks mount higher each week. Hamilton, who seldom leaves the stage of a New York theater, unless it is to appear in some American production in London, is at present touring as a co-star with his wife, Grace La Rue, in John Golden's comedy hit, "Dear Me," coming to the Academy tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday, and Wednesday matinee.

Hamilton won fame with American and English audiences when, some years ago, he created the role of J. Rufus Wallingford in George M. Cohan's famous "get-rich-quick" comedy of that name. He played the role of the suave, resourceful, well-groomed J. Rufus both in the original New York and London productions during the extended runs in both cities.

While he was playing in London, Grace La Rue, his present co-star, in "Dear Me," and off the stage Mrs. Hale Hamilton—was appearing at an adjoining theater, but during all these months they have not met and neither dreamed that some day they would be married.

Hamilton, together with Luther Reed, a New York newspaper man, wrote "Dear Me," which served to place him in the ranks of successful playwrights.

Prize For "Dear Me."

Douglas Gordon, Norfolk, well known as a dramatic critic to Richmond readers, in expressing an opinion of "Dear Me," which opens at the Academy tonight, says:

"Dear Me," with Grace La Rue and Hale Hamilton and a fine company, making great hit here. One of the season's best comedies."

"Peg of My Soul," at Lyric.

William Edmunds & Co. with Gail White, are offering a playlet called "Peg of My Soul," which is a comedy. There is the owner of a chain of repair shops, an ingenue in a review, a stage-door tender and a cobbler. With these four characters the author has woven a comedy. In pegging a nail in the door of a playlet, the author has made it a different. The act will be one of the best features of the new show at the Lyric today.

Mr. Edmunds is a character actor of high repute. He has scored heavily in vaudeville in "Not Yet Married." In fact, his splendid performance in this play under the same management makes it offering him in this new vehicle a responsibility. For Mr. Edmunds becoming a star. "Peg of My Soul" was written especially for him, and in it he has another of those roles in which no player portrays better.

On the same bill will be Joe Deller, pianist-accompanied; Francis Adams, comedienne and chanteuse; Stan Stanley and company of variety entertainers; and Minnie and Sidell, European comedy eccentrics.

Sousa and His Band Here in March.

John Philip Sousa and his band are moving eastward from the Pacific Coast and will come to Richmond, giving two concerts Saturday, March 4 at the City Auditorium. One of the happiest of the added attractions of this season's concert of Sousa's Band is the brilliant staff of vocal and instrumental soloists performing in the different programs provided by the march king. Six stars of the first magnitude in addition to the great ensemble of trained band instrumentalists are at the command of the famous leader.

Precious and memorial examples of great compositions for the harp now enrich the library of Sousa's Band, which has Miss Winifred Hambrick, foremost virtuoso of that beloved instrument, as solo harpist. John Dolan, cornet virtuoso, stands at the forefront of the great soloists of that instrument. Ellis McDermid, an artist of demonstrated superiority, is the solo flutist of the famous band; George J. Carey, the xylophonist expert, adds novelty and distinction to many performances; Miss Mary Baker, a first-class singer of high attainments, is the soprano soloist.

Practical Black Velvet

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—With all of its loveliness, there's something tremendously practical about the black velvet evening gown which is not too expensive to wear.

Black velvet is a material which is correct for any hour after 1 o'clock, and the décolleté gown of such a medium can easily and effectively be transformed into a day dress by the addition of a high collar, a high cuff, or a high waist. It is a material which makes it a quite proper frock for afternoon.

Black velvet gown is of softest velvet, hung in a gracefully full skirt, irregular as to hem line and ornamented at the side with ermine tails.

The effect, so cut as to reveal a bit of white between two bands of velvet, is one which is exceptionally becoming to the arm, which is quite lovely enough in itself. And I note that even the beauties of the stage and society seldom wear plain shoulder straps.

and Miss Florence Hardeman, the violinist, completes the roster of eminent soloists now appearing under the baton of the march king.

Popular Railroad Man Tells How Plant Juice Has Relieved His Stomach Trouble.

SAYS FOOD CAUSED HIM PAIN

Stomach Is Now in Fine Condition; He Sleeps Good and Has No More Trouble With Gas

Plant Juice, the famous herbal stomach medicine, stands the highest of any preparation now on the market because its remarkable curative powers have been proved in thousands of cases where other remedies have failed to give relief. According to the signed statements of local people who have been restored to health.

Recently the signed statement of Mr. Walter Applewhite, a popular employee of the Seaboard R. R. Company, residing at No. 2022 Holliday Street, Portsmouth, was received. He says:

"About three years ago I had the grippe and it left me in a weak and run-down condition. I had no appetite and what little I could keep in my stomach would cause me terrible pain and I was bloated with gas. I was so dizzy that at times I would stagger and I could not keep my head. I was affected and I had pains in my back. I had tried a lot of different medicines, but got no benefit from any of them. When I read of the number of our home people who had been cured by Plant Juice, many of whom I knew, I decided to try it. It has done me worlds of good. My stomach is now in fine condition; I have no more trouble with gas or pains, sleep fine at night and am not troubled with any more dizzy spells. I certainly have received my money's worth from Plant Juice and am glad to recommend it."

Plant Juice is sold in Richmond at Tragle's Drug Store.

Plant Juice is sold in Petersburg by Morrison, the Drug Man, and in Chase City by the Chase City Drug Company.—Adv.

ALICE MARY ROBERTSON, 68, TO "STAND" FOR RE-ELECTION

Says if Women Are Going to Be Mere Petticoats and Have Everything Served on a Platter, They Are Not Doing Their Duty.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Alice Mary Robertson, lone woman member of Congress, did enough to be the mother of many of her colleagues, is going to "stand" for re-election next fall despite her 68 years.

"Why?" one asks of this quiet, calm, motherly yet businesslike woman, whose life has been spent largely in a country where a life was "roughing it."

"Why? Women must assume the duty of citizenship on a par with men. I am a member of the Republican party and I desire to stand for re-election next fall as a Republican representative who hopes she has done her assigned work well."

Will she "seek" re-election? No. "Why? The office should seek the woman."

No Privileges Shown Women. Does she, as a matter of pride in sex, urge women to enter the coming campaign? No.

"Why should a woman be given an office simply because she is a woman? Some people may think so, but that makes me very angry. Did any body give me the nomination? No. I was asked if I would take the nomination, and I took several weeks to decide. If women are going to be mere petticoats and have everything served them on a silver platter, they are not doing their duty as citizens. No privileges are shown me here. I make sure of that. Women are voting citizens now, just as men are. They must assume the duties of citizenship equally."

Has Miss Robertson become cynical of politics after association with professional politicians in Washington?

"It has been a very great pleasure to find in my associations with the representatives of the people in the House that so large a number are actuated by high motives."

From her experiences here does she think that women should let politics alone?

Has Duty to Perform. "Every man and woman," Miss Robertson answers, "has his or her duty to perform as a citizen, and the citizen should make himself felt in the political movement from the very beginning. The beginning is the precinct meeting where the individuality of every citizen counts. It is here that the political struggle starts—the neighborhood. If women are going to stand apart from the political unit, the neighborhood, if they are going to stand aloof from the beginning, if they thus fail to do their duty as citizens they have no right to criticize."

Is Miss Robertson going to join the so-called agricultural blue movement, and as a member thereof, lay her main claim to re-election?

"I desire to stand for re-election as a Republican," is the answer. "While I expect to work with the agricultural blue, I am not a member of it. I feel very much encouraged that the farmer is having a better opportunity than ever before, but I am not interested in the farmer alone, even though I am a representative of a farming community. State, and Oklahoma's wealth is more largely the result of its farms than of its oil wells, despite popular belief. Any one who does one's duty as a legislator must see beyond the four walls of home."

What is Miss Robertson's main political concern?

"The thing that frightens me most in meeting the duties which come to me is a tendency to carry legislation beyond a point of sane conservatism." (Copyright, 1922, by United News.)

SEES DEATH AS CHANGE, NOT AS A CALAMITY

ing of Heaven. The descriptions in Revelation certainly indicated that it is a beautiful place. Heaven means the real beginning of the larger means enabling companionship, the best and truest men of all ages are there. And I say unto you that many shall come from the East and the West, and shall sit down in the Kingdom with Abraham, Moses and Isaac and the rest. Heaven will likewise be a place of freedom, we will be free there from everything that limits and mars. In Heaven there will be no sorrow, no toil, no sickness, no death. And God shall wipe all tears away from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain for the former things shall pass away. In Heaven we will have perfect knowledge, for here we know in part, but then we shall know even as we are known, and when we reach Heaven we shall be perfect in our love.

Reward of Victory. "In the last place, what will be the reward of Heaven? It will give us the reward of victory; death will have no sting. We shall likewise find in Heaven the real things, so much of earth is a sham, a mockery, unreal, but in eternity we will find the things and know the things that endure. Everything will be real and true. I believe that Heaven will likewise be a place of progress. We will find our true selves, our complete freedom and the recovery of our highest possibilities in the next world.

"But more than all that, we will live with Him forever. When we have fought the good fight, we will find the crown, but we can find Heaven in one way only. Jesus said, 'I am the way, the truth and the life; no man cometh unto the father but by me.' I am the door by me, if any man entereth in he shall be saved and he shall go in and out and find pasture. Jesus is the way and the only way to the life beyond."
